

RUNWAY TRAVEL

tailored luxury travel

This Earth Day, let's celebrate the beauty of our planet by traveling sustainably. Luxury and eco-consciousness can go hand in hand, and we've curated destinations where indulgences are low-impact and activities include restoring native habitats. From eco-friendly resorts to marine conservation, your travels can help protect and preserve the places we love. Let's explore responsibly and make every journey count.

Happy Earth Day!

THE BRANDO, FRENCH POLYNESIA

Africa's Sustainable Stays

We can make your African trip even more meaningful through our partners' involvement in sustainability programs that support both the environment and local communities.

SINGITA LOWVELD TRUST (SLT)

Non-profit conservation and community development partner in the Greater Kruger National Park region in South Africa. Through dedicated conservation efforts, the Singita Lowveld Trust contributes to Singita's 100-year purpose to preserve large areas of African wilderness for future generations.

CHILDREN IN THE WILDERNESS (CITW)

Children in the Wilderness is a non-profit supported by Wilderness, focusing on sustainable conservation through education and leadership development for children in Africa. The program helps rural children understand the importance of conservation and prepares them to be future custodians of Africa's wilderness and wildlife. This is done through Eco-Club programs at local schools, camps at Wilderness and partner sites, and various community initiatives like school nutrition, village upliftment, and scholarship programs.

GREAT PLAINS FOUNDATION

Great Plains' conservation efforts trace back to the early days of protecting wilderness. The focus is on preserving entire ecosystems to safeguard wildlife. By identifying threatened areas near national parks and reserves, we acquire rights to convert land into protected areas supported by photographic tourism, replacing hunting or agricultural land. Managing around 1,000,000 acres in Botswana, Kenya, and Zimbabwe, Great Plains implements innovative conservation and community projects in partnership with local communities.

How to be Earth Friendly While Traveling?

Pack Sustainably

“Travel Light, Travel Green”

- Use reusable shopping bags, cutlery, and a coffee cup.
- Avoid mini hotel toiletries—bring your own refillable containers.

Respect Wildlife & Nature

“See the World, Protect the World”

- Support ethical wildlife tourism and avoid attractions that harm animals or their habitats.
- Choose tour operators that emphasize sustainable and responsible wildlife experiences.

Local & Sustainable Dining

“Taste the Local Flavor, Support the Earth”

- Dine at restaurants that serve locally sourced, organic food.
- Visit farmers' markets or participate in farm-to-table experiences to support sustainable farming.

Walking & Cycling Tours

“Step Lightly, Travel Sustainably”

- Explore cities and nature on foot or by bike to minimize your carbon footprint.
- Choose eco-friendly tour operators offering sustainable walking and cycling experiences.
